Antioch Fair Opens Today With Large and Varied Exhibits

FREE PERFORMANCE, BAND, RIDES, GAMES ARE ATTRACTIONS

"Exhibits Bigger and Better"

Clear, blue skies greeted residents of Antioch this morning and more than a few persons probably exclaimed when they arose, "This is ideal weather for the fair."

Won't be long now! Only an hour or two, then everyone will be there. The fair opens at Antioch at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Early this morning there was an unusual hustle and bustle about the city. It seemed as though the summer tourist season were in full swing. Everything was gay. Merchants were smiling even more than they usually do. Customers were anxious to buy their wares and go home to "dress up for the fair."

Today is "Entry Day" for all those who plan on showing exhibits. Tomorrow is "Wisconsin Day," and Saturday will be "Lake County Day."

"Biggest and Best"—Minto.

Convinced that the fair this year will be the biggest and best Antioch has ever had, President Harold D. Minto, in an interview this afternoon declared the exhibits in almost every department excel those of last year both in quality and quantity, with the exception of those shown by the merchants, which is no doubt due to the depression.

"We're going to have more and better fancywork this year," said Mrs. Clarence Crowley, when asked to make a statement regarding the prospects in the domestic art department. Likewise, Mrs. Carl Hughes and Mrs. Theo Smith, who are in charge of the pantry stores and floriculture exhibits, respectively, declared entries this year came from far more distant places than they did last year, and that the quality was better. "There is plenty here, and more to come," said Mrs. Hughes.

Although the number of paintings on exhibit in the fine art department will probably be smaller than last year, there is a greater variety, according to Mrs. Fred Hackett, chairman.

Day and Night Fair.

The fair will be open during both the day and the night. Free attractions on the stage will be presented in the afternoon and again in the evening. A band concert in the early evening will be given Friday and Saturday.

Chickens, pigeons, turkeys, rabbits, etc., will form the largest exhibit of the fair. The poultry shows at Antioch in the past years have been the largest outside of the Coliseum and the Milwaukee Auditorium shows. It is expected that this year it will surpass all former records.

Grains, fruits, and vegetables will form another exhibit, and flowers another. Lake county schools will compete in booth exhibits.

Women will exhibit canning, baking, sewing and fancywork, and fine arts. The Future Farmers of Lake county will have an exhibit of livestock, including dairy heifers, sheep, and hogs.

Entertainment Good.

Besides the free acts and the band concert, there will be rides, games of skill, shows, and other entertainment. Commercial exhibits will be on display in large numbers. Anyone can spend a full day there and then perhaps miss something worthwhile.

All school children, including high school pupils will be admitted free each day and exhibitors will have season passes. All others will be admitted by paying the small admission price of 25 cents. Parking of automobiles on the grounds will be free.

The judges who have been selected to judge the exhibits are as follows:

Mrs. C. E. Bowerman, Janesville, women's department; H. W. Halbuck, Waterford, poultry and livestock; Peter Oberton, Kenosha, flowers; M. E. Scofield, Lake Geneva, farm products; and C. D. Hutson, Libertyville, educational department.

SO LONG, SAYS EINAR

Wall-eyed pike, the 34-inch 8-pound variety, grow in Channel lake, according to Einar Sorenson, resort keeper, who is credited with hooking the specimen of unusual size Friday evening. Sorenson, who is a taxidermist, will preserve the fish as evidence of his prowess as a nimrod and to prove that angling is not at all bad at Channel lake.

Antioch Mourns Death of "Bill" Steininger

Dies in Chicago Sunday of Injuries

Relatives, teachers, schoolmates, and friends today mourn the death of William Steininger, 21, graduate of the class of 1929 of the Antioch township high school and present holder of the Lake county record in the javelin throw, who suffered fatal injuries last Sunday afternoon while playing football with a "sandlot" grid eleven in Chicago.

He was taken to a Chicago hospital, where he died while a blood transfusion was being arranged.

Following the game, "Bill," as he was well known to his hundreds of friends, went to his home at 1900 S. California avenue, where he lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Antone Steininger.

After eating dinner "Bill" went outside to talk over the game with his friends. Suddenly he complained of feeling sick and decided to return to his home.

A physician was called and he died a short time later of a ruptured kidney and spleen. It is not known, however, whether his death resulted from the injuries received in the football game or from an automobile accident in which he figured the night before.

Until a year and a half ago the Steiningers had made their home in Antioch and "Bill" attended the local high school for four years, where he won thirteen letters, two in basketball, three in track, four in baseball, and four in football. He was considered the best all-round athlete ever graduated from the Antioch high school.

In the 1929 Lake county track and field meet, held at Weiss field, Steininger hurled the javelin a distance of 151 feet, 1 inch. That mark has stood up under the fire of other ace tosses, although Keller of Libertyville came close to bettering it last year.

Steininger also held the Lake county record in the shot put for a year or so, but his mark was finally bettered.

Steininger was honored by being chosen as All-Northwest conference guard on the basketball team and was also an All-Conference fullback. He performed as pitcher for the baseball team.

He is survived by his father, Antone; mother, Anna, and one sister and three brothers, all of whom live in Chicago, and an uncle, Frank Mastne, of Antioch. He also has several other relatives.

The funeral services are being held in Chicago this afternoon. Coach Reed and several of the youth's teammates will attend.

Emogene Olson Ends Life By Stepping In Front of Train

Choosing an exit from life as certain as it was dreadful, Miss Emogene Olson, 1005 Keith avenue, Waukegan, daughter of Henry Olson, Antioch, stepped in front of a northbound work train in Waukegan Tuesday and was crushed to death.

The 23-year-old girl, described as having red hair and gray eyes and neatly dressed, stepped from the platform when the train was less than 50 feet away, turned her back to the oncoming electric cars, put her hands over her eyes, and a moment later was struck.

Motorman W. P. Murphy saw the girl but had no time to stop. She was dead when extricated from under the wheels.

Identified by Compact.

Identified by a compact bearing her name and the insignia of Lake Forest college, Miss Olson was taken to the Wetzel & Peterson undertaking establishment, where an examination was made. Meanwhile investigators had called Lake Forest college.

Mrs. Florence Hook, the secretary in the bursar's office, answered the phone.

"No, Miss Olson was not registered here," she said, "but what about her?"

When told that the girl had committed suicide Mrs. Hook screamed and fainted. She was the girl's sister.

Can't Explain Act.

Neither Mrs. Hook nor Mrs. E. F. Algrim, a second sister, with whom Miss Olson lived at the Keith avenue address, could offer any explanation of the tragedy.

JURORS LAUD SMITH FOR AID IN BANK QUIZ

Grand Jurors Vote Thanks in Resolution Tendered to Prosecutor

JAMES STEARNS JURY MEMBER

Praise for Colonel A. V. Smith, state's attorney of Lake county, and his assistant, George McGaughey, for their fearless work in aiding the grand jury in its investigation of the Waukegan bank cases was voiced Friday when jurors placed typed copies of a resolution in the hands of the Lake county prosecutor.

Colonel Smith and McGaughey displayed zeal, integrity, and extreme desire to be courteous and fair throughout the hearing which was the longest grand jury investigation ever conducted in Lake county.

The Resolution.

The resolution is as follows:

"During this, the longest grand jury hearing in Lake county history, State's Attorney A. V. Smith has exerted every effort within his power to aid the jury in its work. Colonel Smith started this important, highly technical and difficult work while still suffering from an illness which had kept him confined to a hospital for some time. He continued his work against advice of physicians, and even despite the solicitous warnings of jury members, in order to insure that an intelligent and fair investigation would be conducted into all phases of this situation.

"We would be remiss in our duty if we did not give public recognition of his zeal, integrity and his extreme desire—shown at all times—to be courteous and equitable in the work on hand.

"Assistant State's Attorney George S. McGaughey has been both able and untiring in his efforts to relieve the work of his chief by rendering every possible service.

"From our knowledge of this case, we believe Lake county will be called on to make expenditures. We go on record as indorsing any request by the state's attorney, that the cases be successfully prosecuted."

Jurors Are Listed.

Members of the grand jury are:

Meeting of Music Teachers Will Be Held at Libertyville on October 14

L. O. Bright, principal of the Antioch township high school, was re-elected president of the Northwest High School Conference at a meeting of that organization at Wauconda last night.

Other officers elected are G. C. Butler, Palatine, vice-president; J. E. Baker, Franklin Park, secretary; V. I. Brown, Arlington Heights, treasurer.

Among other things, it was decided to have a music festival again this year. A meeting of the music teachers will be held at Libertyville next Wednesday night, according to Mr. Bright, who is acting chairman of that committee.

Antioch Players Beat Arlington

Winning a victory not only for themselves, but also for their school, members of the Antioch township high school football squad defeated their old enemy, Arlington Heights, on the home field Saturday afternoon, with a score of 13-0.

The first touchdown was made in the first quarter by Brogan when he intercepted a pass in the 40-yard line and ran behind beautiful interference.

After a series of end-runs and passes the second score was made by a quarterback sneak in the second quarter. During the last half neither team was able to score, both teams seeming to be somewhat listless due to the warm weather.

The next game will be with Gurnee Friday afternoon at 3:30.

Antioch Firemen Are Feted With a Dinner

In recognition of the efforts expended by the Antioch fire department members here last summer when the roof of the Antlers hotel caught fire, C. E. Waldo feted the local group with a dinner Monday night at which thirty-six were in attendance.

President F. B. Huber acted as toastmaster and Herb Vos and John Horan, charter members of the organization, were among those who gave short talks on fire prevention week.

Attorney General's Opinion Hits Meddling Supervisor Committees

Consent of No Committee Is Necessary in Printing Assessment Lists

TREASURER SOLELY IN CHARGE—CARLSTROM

Meddling committees of the county board seeking patronage for their favorites no longer will harrass the Lake county treasurer by attempting to dictate the mediums for the publication of township assessment lists, if they heed the opinion given by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, who declares that "the consent of no committee of the county board is necessary or of the board itself is necessary to the legality of the bill."

The county treasurer, being ex-officio supervisor of assessments, is in charge under the provisions of the law, solely with the publication, according to Carlstrom. "—No special ruling or procedure other than that prescribed by the statute is permissible," the attorney general declares.

Dictate to Morse.

The issuing of requisitions for the publication of the assessment rolls this year was the result of the practice inaugurated by the auditing committee, according to County Treasurer Jay B. Morse.

Morse says he informed the committee that the requisitions were not necessary; however, he bowed to the supervisors' wishes for the purpose of promoting harmony and to prevent delay of payment to publishers.

CHET WALDO BUYS ANTLERS HOSTELRY FROM HOLDERNESS

Came Here 3 Years Ago to Be Mine Host at Antioch Hotel

Announcement was made today that C. E. Waldo, mine host here for the past three years, has completed arrangements with George Holderness, Kenosha, for the purchase of the Antlers hotel. Consideration of the transaction was not stated.

Mr. Waldo, who will take immediate possession of the hostelry, came to Antioch from Madison, Wis., in December, 1928, at which time he became manager of the Antioch hotel.

Possibility of the Antlers undergoing a thorough remodeling was voiced by C. E. this morning when he explained he was formulating plans for bringing the front of the building out to the street and for the addition of more baths and rest rooms.

DEARBORN IDLE WANT $80,000 FROM FORD CO.

The Dearborn Unemployed Taxpayers association went on record Saturday with a demand that the Ford Motor company be reassessed an additional $40,000,000 for tax purposes in Dearborn for the relief of unemployed through certain improvements in that city. More than 900 attended the meeting, at which the resolution was passed.

Declaring the Ford company made a profit of $85,000,000 in 1929 and $46,000,000 in 1930, the resolution urged the $40,000,000 lopped off the company's assessed valuation in 1929 be restored. This would provide additional taxes of $80,000.

Parent-Teacher Association Has First Session

Antioch demonstrated anew its interest in the local Parent-Teacher association when a large number gathered at the grade school Monday night to attend the first business meeting of the school year.

Unable to agree as to who should be eligible for membership in the association, those in attendance wrangled for some time before it was definitely decided that any American citizen, whether he have children in school or not, should be given the privileges of becoming a member of the organization.

The membership drive is still in process and it is hoped that within the next few weeks 100 per cent will have signed up.

Mrs. G. E. Phillips Organizes Girl Scout Group Here; Woman's Club and Parent-Teachers Pledge Support

Misses Harwood, Byrnes Named Lieutenant, Captain

By Agnes Blenfang

Like the Pallas Athena miracle, it's hard to believe—that a speck of star dust has sifted loose and drifted this way. Nevertheless, it's fact and not fancy.

Explanation: A new organization has been—well, like Topsy, not exactly born—but formed in Antioch. No introduction is necessary—the Girl Scouts are too well known. This very worthwhile movement has been made possible here through the ambition and public-mindedness of Mrs. G. E. Phillips, local Parent-Teacher association president and kindergarten instructor.

Is Interested in Young People.

'Mid the complexity, jangle, and scurry of this modern life, most of us have, or rather take, very little time to think of our own welfare, to say nothing of the salvation of the young people of the community, but Mrs. Phillips is not like that; she has an unselfish, active interest in them and is eager to make them the best citizens possible.

Scouts Founded in 1910

The Girl Scout organization was founded in Great Britain in 1910 under the name of Girl Guides. Mrs. Juliette Low, a friend of the founder of the Boy Scouts, brought the movement to the United States in 1912, where the first troop was formed in Savannah. At the present time nearly all the civilized countries of the world have Girl Scouts. In 1926, representatives from twenty-nine organizations were the guests of the United States at the international conference at Camp Edith Macy, the national Girl Scout training school for leaders at Briarcliff Manor, New York.

MRS. PHILLIPS WELL QUALIFIED

From the standpoint of her personality as well as her training, Mrs. Phillips's influence among the Girl Scouts of Antioch will be both stimulating and fruitful. She is a-snap with vitality, passionately sincere, tactful, and naturally gracious.

Through her experiences in the field of dramatic art, which she studied at Northwestern, Chicago, and Wisconsin universities, she has acquired a thorough understanding of children.

Being a well-known playwright, she has had the privilege of working with such artists as "Bill" Troutman, University of Wisconsin speech director, and Miss Winifred Ward, head of the Children's Little Theater and creative art instructor at Northwestern.

Aim to Develop Character, Happiness.

There is something magic about the Girl Scouts. It must be the outdoor life of adventure, full of thrilling difficulties to be overcome. Scouts must be accustomed to the open; they have to know how to put up tents, how to lay a fire, how to cook their own food; how to find their way by night as well as by day. Their activities revolve around outdoor living, housekeeping, and community service, including home nursing and first aid. Through these they aim to develop character and happiness. Through their life in the open the girls learn to enjoy simple, natural recreation instead of artificial amusement, and learn the secrets of nature at their source. In community service their outlook is

AMERICA HAS IT ALL OVER EUROPE

There is one thing in which America has it all over Europe. That is our autumn season, or, as we usually call it, the Fall of the year.

It must be admitted that we don't have much of a spring season in most parts of this country. We go from winter smack into summer, almost. We don't understand what the English poets are talking about when they sing of spring. But over there, they go from summer right into winter. There is none of that long-drawn-out season after harvest, when the leaves are turning and falling and, in the north at least, there is a touch of frost in the early morning and the sweet smell of fallen leaves and nature takes on a coat of gorgeous color before shifting to the somber gray of winter.

Fall is the season of play for the farmer. When the crops have been harvested and the fall plowing done, there is a period before winter sets in, when hunting is at its best, when it is a pleasure to be out-of-doors with nothing of immediate importance to attend to. It is a season of relaxation after the heat and the strain of summer, when folks can take time to sum up the result of the year's work and begin their plans for the next.

Thanksgiving day in most parts of this country marks the end of fall and the real beginning of winter. Then we begin looking forward to Christmas and thence to "next spring." We hear travelers tell of countries where the seasons never change from one year's end to the other. But doesn't it seem to you that half of the pleasure of life comes from the changing seasons and from looking forward to the next change?

ANTIOCH PEOPLE'S AID SOUGHT

Begging or soliciting is becoming a fine art. Almost every day and sometimes more than once a day Antioch people are asked to help this or that cause. Perhaps some of them are worthy, but it is becoming like hitch-hiking, all must be refused because so large a percentage is unsafe to help. Stories are reported of children in school who are not able to buy supplies or who have not sufficient clothing. Perhaps there are those who shoud have more food, or who could easily relieve the surplus of foods. In all cases it seems best to bestow charity at home, but it mght be well to find out how much those children who cannot have a pencil or tablet spend for amusement. True, children should have amusement, but they should be taught to economize and spend wisely. Be wise as well as generous in relieving distress.

FORD'S PLAN WILL CAUSE SURPLUS

Henry Ford is going to ask, or rather compel, his workmen to put in gardens. If they do this the market gardener will naturally suffer and be driven out of business. Thus the proposed plan will cause more over-production of a line of foods that have been at ruinously low prices for the last year or more.

LEGION MEN LAY OFF OF BONUS PAYMENTS

President Hoover asked the American Legion not to request any more bonus payments from the government at this time. To the credit of the men assembled at the convention, no such demand was made upon the government. With a deficit for the year greater than the amount expended by the government during any year before the war, the situation appears to be rather grave and assuming of any heavy burden might endanger the whole financial system.

KEEP TO RIGHT, IS CHIEF MOODY'S MOTORISTS' EDICT

Chicago, Ill., October 7.—Illinois state highway police have been ordered to warn motorists who drive next to the center line on 4-lane highways that they must use the outer, or right, lane except when passing, according to a statement made by Walter L. Moody, chief of the state police, to the Chicago Motor club.

At the same time, Chief Moody told his officers to keep traffic on 2-lane highways moving at a moderate rate of speed, and to order drivers of slowly moving cars to speed up so that cars behind them will not be delayed unnecessarily.

"It is not my idea, for the present, at least, to issue arrest slips to those who hug the center line of 4-lane highways," Chief Moody informed the motor club. "We shall, however, insist that every driver observe that rule of the road which provides for keeping to the right except when passing, and to return to the right after a car has been passed.

"We shall enforce the moderate speed rule particularly on 2-lane highways in the metropolitan area, where a few unreasonably slow drivers can hold up long lines of traffic. When traffic is approaching from the opposite direction, it is hazardous to attempt to pass slowly moving cars. By requiring everyone to drive at a moderate speed, we hope to speed traffic to a material extent on these routes."

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, declared that Chief Moody's plans should result in reducing congestion, delay and accidents in the metropolitan area on week-ends and holidays. He asserted that the driver who forces cars to pass on the right on 4-lane highways and the person who drives unreasonably slowly on 2-lane highways have been responsible for a considerable part of the unfavorabl econditions which have prevailed on these highways at peak traffic periods.

Chapter XIV

PIONEERING IDEAS

MODERN pioneers do not trek cross-country in covered wagons. They do not battle Indians and live on buffalo meat. Modern frontiers are found in business and science.

In 1910 a struggling utility company in northern Illinois pioneered an idea. A single electric generating station was substituted for ten scattered stations.

The experiment was successful—so successful that the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois was founded in 1911 to repeat it on a larger scale. Service was extended to an ever-widening circle of towns and villages around Chicago. Rates were lowered again and again. A "superpower network" was developed. Today 350,000 families in 319 communities receive a quality of service, both gas and electric, undreamed of 20 years ago.

Before the World War a hand-wringer that screwed on to the side of a wash-tub was considered a labor-saving appliance in most homes. So was the carpet sweeper. Women were suspicious of an electric iron someone had invented.

Here was a field for more pioneering. The Public Service Company took 400 of the new irons, demonstrated them in customers' homes. Women were quick to appreciate this new help. Electric irons became a part of good-housekeeping equipment.

As fast as other practical home appliances were introduced, the Company introduced them to its customers. Through its stores it sponsored—is still sponsoring—dozens of time and labor-savers. It is showing homemakers new ways of doing old chores. And back of every appliance sold is a performance guarantee.

When magazines began to picture mechanical refrigerators for home use, 10 years ago, a new job of pioneering began. The Company selected what it believed to be the best of these home "cold storage plants", installed a number of them in northern Illinois kitchens.

A few of these first refrigerators did not "make good". Something went wrong inside—something that could hardly be anticipated. The Company explained the situation frankly to the buyers, provided free servicing, offered free replacement. Customers lost no money.

Today, improved refrigerators are being welcomed into thousands of homes. The air-conditioning—the "manufactured weather"—that is so popular in moving picture theaters and other public buildings—is near at hand. Company engineers are estimating possibilities, cooperating with manufacturers of equipment. Small machines that both wash and cool air are being tested. It will not be long before homes can be as comfortably cool during summer months as they are now comfortably warm in winter.

Who knows what will be next? Modern frontiers are found in business and science. There is always pioneering to be done.

Taxpayers' Questions

Is it a wonder why taxpaying factory workers wonder why the amount for poor relief, estimated by "civic leaders," jumped from $30,000 to $100,000, after some large industries announced wage cuts?

Is it a wonder that taxpayers wonder whether salaries of public officials, teachers, janitors and payrollers will be reduced in line with wage cuts of taxpayers working in factories?

* * *

Why do taxpayers have to pay "extras" on school buildings, improvement jobs in streets and filtration plants?

* * *

Why are certain public payrollers and tax-spenders so anxious about the Lake County Taxpayers Association, and why so anxious to have something done about them?

* * *

When a railroad installs fifty automatic gates, how many taxpayers will be thrown out of a job?

Why are pay checks for grade teachers discounted at 2 per cent, and those for high school not discounted?

A taxpayer wants to know whether the same disgruntled ring that tried to stir up trouble in the annexed territory to Waukegan is behind the protest about the Market street raids?

If a local chief of police and an editor want to close the rackets and then let only a few re-open, should not the taxpayers rejoice if the other keepers of the peace announce that they will kep all closed and not let some run to buy from a select list in the possession of the editor's offspring?

* * *

If most of the patrons of the Bonnie Brook school are content to have their children taught in the clean, light basement and save tax expense of an addition, why listen to the grumbling of an unemployed carpenter?

McHenry county's assessed valuations dropped $3,000,000 while those of Lake county increased. What will the tax-spenders in Lake county do to cut down the tax rate from last year?

Taxpayers are hailing Mayor Peterson as the mayor who made good, because he is about the only mayor in the United States who is practicing the economy that others preach. Should not the small taxpayers thank their stars that they united to put such a business executive into office where he does not practice politics, but enforces economy, regardless of persons?

When will civic clubs unite with the militant taxpayers in the taxpayers' hue an dcry against 13-cent milk, $1.35 gas, 7-cent carfare, 9-cent electric current and 25-cent per ton increase each month in the fuel racket?

Is there a fairminded taxpayer who does not believe it is preferable to use for poor relief the money now paid as salaries and rents for civic clubs, including the Chamber of Commerce?

* * *

Is it not a fact that with harder times, the small taxpayer takes up one more hole in his belt, sets his teeth, and faces it, while the clothespin aristocrat crumples up and passes out?

If racketeering financiers from the big city know how to battle and gouge each other in business deals, what do they know about rough and tumble fights with organized wrecking crews of militant taxpayers when such taxpayers are struggling for equal rights for all honest persons?

How did taxpayers enjoy the item in the local press of September 24, showing how much one utility, one fuel company, and a 13-cent dairy gave last year to charity and made no mention of the hard-earned dollars you small taxpayers denied your family in order to give to the needier?

When will living prices be cut 10 per cent for taxpayers the same as wages? Why continue to pay 13 cents for milk, $1.35 for gas, 9 cents for electricity, 7 cents for carfare, and suffer a fuel racketeer to increase prices 25 cents per ton per month during the fall and winter? Are taxpayers going to donate money for the poor to feed and warm them at such prices?

* * *

What will the taxpayers do for those who bring to justice the slickers who scuttle banks with the taxpayers' bankroll?

* * *

When will taxpayers learn whether Waukegan is getting a real audit that will result in money being returned to the public till, if expended contrary to the law?

A taxpayer wants to know why there is so much secrecy about public records.

How much longer are the taxpayers going to be forced to see $500 per month paid to a head of a filtration plant that cannot earn its way?

When will the taxpayers learn that the ninth tax on an auto is repealed the wheel tax is no longer?

TAXPAYERS AT FAULT FOR HIGH GOVERNMENT

The chairman of the Wisconsin tax commission, E. L. Kelley, is attracting much attention by his comments upon taxation, especially because he credits taxpayers with much of the fault for current high taxation. Some of the important views of this chairman are:

"The two predominating problems in the field of public finance are, first, local expenditures, and, second, the equitable distribution of the tax burden. The first challenges local government to a struggle to keep municipal expenditures within the ability of the community to pay and safely borrow, and to resist extravagant, careless expenditures and many so-called improvements; and the second proble mis to distribute the payment of the cost of government so that it may fall as equitably as possible upon all th bnficiaris of organizd socity.

"The attitude of the public, of those who pay the bills, toward the taxation problem is very often inconsistent, petulant, and the despair of those who honestly strive for relief from the ever-mounting cost of municipal government.

"While it is true that county boards, common councils, village trustees and town boards often foolishly squander public money and with other officers are negligent in preserving and enforcing economies, upon the whole the larger responsibility for increasing taxes can be justly laid upon the taxpayers themselves.

"The control of municipal expenditure is thus largely in the hands of the people, and if they are being drawn down rocky ways that give them many a painful bump, they cannot throw all the blame on the propelling body, for the public holds in its own hands the reins which direct a very susceptible and obedient force.

"Now, wherein is the citizenship of the average municipality to be censured? Is it in responsibility for increasing public expenditures, or for the tumult it raises when it opens its purse to pay for what it has ordered? Often, of course, it is blamable for foolish expenses and investments, but more often it presents a sorry spectacle when bewailing the payment of taxes raised to pay for necessary modern improvements and governmental service to keep level with the higher standards of an advanced and constantly advancing age.

"Another consideration is here worthy of comment. The demand from the government of all the latest improvements and luxuries is an instinctive reaction in those who, earning comfortable salaries, are enabled privately to enjoy them and who naturally desire this same standard of service from government. The incomes of these citizens pay but a relatively small percentage of the cost of these additional expenditures, which cost is paid by additional assessments on realty, the least productive factor in the creation of income.

"Thus, the least productive species of property, including the small home and farm, the owners of which have no urge for luxuries, is obliged to contribute an unfair proportion of the cost of providing government service to others "in the style to which they are accustomed." This, under present methods of raising revenue, is a direct and positive injustice growing out

STATE OF ILLINOIS
Law Department
Springfield
September 28, 1931.

FILE NO. 3495.
PUBLICATION:
Assessment Roll.

Hon. A. V. Smith,
State's Attorney,
Waukegan, Illinois.

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of the following letter of Hon. Geo. S. McGaughey, Assistant State's attorney of your county, dated September 21, 1931, to-wit:

"I will appreciate your opinion on the four questions relative to the publication of assessment rolls:

"1. Whether or not the county treasurer or supervisor of assessments has sole charge of the publication?

"2. How are such publications paid for, out of the earnings of the office, or through an act of the supervisors allowing the bills?

"3. Is a requisition signed by the members of the printing committee or other supervisors necessary?

"4. Is any special ruling or procedure, other than that prescribed by the Illinois statutes permissible in any county in this state other than Cook county?"

Under the provisions of "An Act for the assessment of property and providing the means therefor, and to repeal certain acts therein named," approved February 25, 1898, (Paragraphs 230, 231 and 232, chap. 120 Smith-Hurd's Illinois Revised Statutes, 1929) counties are classified in three classes: Those not under township organization, those under township organization under 250,000 inhabitants and those containing over 250,000 inhabitants. In townships not under township organization the county treasurer is made ex-officio county assessor, in counties under township organization under 250,000 inhabitants the county treasurer is made ex-officio supervisor of assessments and all counties of over 250,000 inhabitants a board of assessors of five members is created.

Section 29 of said Act, being in Paragraph 308 of said chapter 120, provides—

"As soon as the county assessor supervisor of assessments or board of assessors, as the case may be, shall have completed the assessment in the year A. D. 1907, such county assessor, supervisor of assessments or board of assessors, SHALL CAUSE to be published a full and complete list of such assessments by townships or assessment districts, ..."

The county of Lake, being under township organization and under 250,000 inhabitants, in my opinion, the county treasurer being ex-officio supervisor of assessments, is in charge under the provisions aforesaid, solely with the publication or mailing to every person as provided in said section, said list.

In answer to your second question, said sections provide for the amount of the fee for such publication of 10 cents per line and not to exceed 5 cents per copy of paper for the number of papers he may require, and these fees, in my opinion, are legal charges against the county to be paid by the County Board.

As to your third question, the statutes direct how this list is to be published and make it the duty of the officer aforesaid, hence I am of the opinion that the consent of no committee of the County Board is necessary or of the Board itself is necessary to the legality of the bill.

As to your fourth question, I fail to comprehend your question and hence I am unable to answer the same, except to say that I know of no special ruling or procedure other than that prescribed by the statute that is permissible in relation to the subject matter of your inquiry, either in Cook or any other county in this state.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) OSCAR E. CARLSTROM,
Attorney General.

CO. TREASURER YIELDS TO SUPERVISOR GROUP IN ILLEGAL PRACTICE

Audit Committee Exceeds Authority in Dictating to Official

ACTION FOR INJUNCTION BARES UNLAWFUL ACTS

By H. B. Gaston

How the printing committee and the auditing committee of the Lake County Board of Supervisors erred in their transactions relating to the publication of township assessment lists, and how County Treasurer Jay B. Morse bowed to the wishes of the groups in his effort to work in "harmony with all concerned," was revealed today in a letter from Treasurer Morse, and the illegality of the actions of the committees is laid bare by a ruling of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

Attention of taxpayers throughout the county was directed to alleged illegal practices in the letting of county printing contracts some weeks ago when Attorney Mortimer Singer, representing the Singer Publishing Company of Highland Park, filed a bill for injunction in circuit court at Waukegan, seeking to restrain the county board from paying money owed the Udell Printing Company of Highland Park for county printing.

IRREGULARITIES CHARGED

In the injunction proceedings, Singer named William Obee, chairman of the county board, County Treasurer Jay B. Morse, M. P. Diiger, Waukegan supervisor, Ira Holderidge, assistant from Waukegan, and Paul L. Udell, a member of the county board and one of the county printing committee. Since Udell is an official of the Udell company, it was pointed out that state law prohibits his company from accepting county contracts.

It was indicated that contracts for county work taken by the Udell company were illegal in two respects: That, under the corrupt practices act, no public official shall be interested in contracts let by the branch of government in which he serves, and that mediums in which assessment lists are printed shall be selected by the county treasurer. Mediums heretofore, it was alleged, have been selected by the county printing committee, which insisted on issuing requisitions only to newspapers of its choice.

The law referred to in the corrupt practices act is Chapter 102, section 3, of the Illinois statutes.

Pending the hearing of Singer's petition for an injunction, a stipulation has been signed, it is reported, in which Paul L. Udell agrees not to collect nor attempt to collect any money for county work done by his company until after the hearing. The stipulation, which virtually amounts to a temporary injunction, ties up several thousand dollars due the Udell company. However, it does not recover the payments made heretofore to the Udell company for alleged illegal contracts.

Dictates to Treasurer.

Inquiry as to where and when the practice of requiring requisitions for publication of assessment lists originated, brought the following reply from County Treasurer Jay B. Morse:

"In 1930 when the several newspapers filed their bills with the county clerk for payment, the auditing committee objected to the bills because requisitions authorizing the publication of lists did not accompany the invoice. I informed them I did not believe it was necessary for requisitions, as the publishing was authorized by statute; also payment of 10 cents per line for same, but that in the future I would have requisitions signed so that payments would not be delayed.

"I hope that I have made myself clear as to publishing assessment lists, and also add that the statute leaves this matter of publishing assessment lists entirely with the supervisor of assessments, if he wishes to exercise the authority, but I have always tried to work in harmony with with all concerned."

"KEEP AMERICAN DOLLAR SUPREME"

But What Taxpayer Can Keep a Dollar?

"Keep the American Dollar Supreme," is the current headline upon a long appeal to the American people by W. R. Hearst, but what taxpayer can even keep a dollar, supreme or otherwise, under conditions which the powerful editor describes, as follows:

"The American people cannot depend greatly upon their government at Washington. It is directed by a man whose chief interest seems to center in European nations."

Mr. Hearst claims that "Our people are capable and intelligent and forceful, and they can, if they will, make their voices heard and have their will respected."

"Reduction (of debts) means cancellation.

"The ultimate aim, and in fact their immediate aim, is complete cancellation of the debts they owe the United States, complete repudiation of the obligations they have incurred for money borrowed from this country to save their lives in the late war."

Mr. Hearst has not indicated what practical methods exist to make the voice of the masses heard in Washington.

The Lake County Taxpayers News has featured opposition to any further debt concessions and long since suggested the wisdom of a congressional investigation of all the propaganda having for its manifest purpose the cancellation of the war loans of billions.

Some even fancy that the current attack on the gold standard abroad is but part of the scheme to scare the United States into debt concessions. Few now in congress will stay there long if the American people get it into their heads that they are being doublecrossed in Washington, and Mr. Hearst is starting something that cannot be stopped short of political oblivion for many because the toilers of America are in no mood for suffering Europe to pass the buck to the United States on account of war messes.

State Auditor Nelson says his indictment is "preposterous" and that he does not know how he could have been connected with the thing. He is not apprehensive about the case, he claims. He claims his innocence will be shown in the trial court. With $700,000 tax funds in the Waukegan State bank, the taxpayers are wondering how the grand jury connected Mr. Nelson with the conspiracy and innumerable taxpayers are carefully watching developments, especially those that will seek to bring back to the taxpayers some of the $700,000. Auditor Nelson is said to be smiling, but the taxpayers are not.

SEEK TO SLASH MAYOR'S SALARY

Those whom the voters cast out of power in Waukegan are being credited with schemes to cut the salary of the mayor who has proved himself to be rather expert at cutting municipal costs of government.

Mayor Peterson gets $2,400 as mayor, and $1,200 as head of the board of local improvements, which at present is not very busy.

Persons who fought to pay a commission mayor $4,800 yearly are objecting to paying a really efficient aldermanic mayor $3,600. However, the majority of taxpayers hail with delight the administration of a hard-boiled practical business man-contractor who means what he says and does what he says, when he exhibits a firm determination to make the municipal garments fit the size of the taxpayers' financial cloth, which is not very large just at present.

Honest taxpayers would gladly pay Mayor Peterson much more than the $3,600 per year and save money by it, if he sticks to his promise to live within the city's scant means.

Mayor Peterson is obtaining a statewide reputation as a business man mayor who eliminates politics, waste, unessential jobs, and pretty words in the administration of public affairs.

The opposition which snarls and snaps simply because it is out of the public crib, is not getting any sympathy from practical people who resent all unfair attempts to stir up public trouble simply for a private spite of the hard luck birth variety. Sporty politicians take their defeats quietly and wait for another battle day, but the selfish type never stop trying to kid themselves into a belief that the public needs their salvation services.

"Unreality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 4.

The Golden Text was, "The Lord knoweth the thoughts of man, that they are vanity" (Psalms 94:11).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage" (Galatians 5:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The enslavement of man is not legitimate. It will cease when man enters into his heritage of freedom, his God-given dominion over the material senses. Mortals will some day assert their freedom in the name of Almighty God. Then they will control their own bodies through the understanding of divine Science" (p. 228).

Taxpayers at Fault for High Government

of elevating the standard of public service highly above the average standard of living.

"Let us examine a few facts to see what our problem is, if any. Since 1923 the expenses of state governments in this country have increased 34 per cent, local governments 26 per cent, and the federal government above 5 per cent. In 1917 the per capita debt was $4.40, and in 1928 it was $13.40. The state and local governments have been increasing their expenditures in the sum of $500,000,000 per year, while the bonded indebtedness has been increasing at the rate of $1,500,000,000 per year. The increase in expenditures and indebtedness is proportionately far in excess of increases in population, assessed valuation, and wealth.

"In response to the appeals of the people, legislatures have madly striven to grant relief from the excessive burden of taxation, which has been brought on by the people themselves, by shifting the tax basis and by sleight-of-hand juggling of the tax burden. These are mere expedients and bring no real relief. Why can't it be understood that the only effective method of securing relief from the engulfing flood of taxation is to get back to the springs and dam them up? When we have permitted the flood to descend upon us, it is folly to attempt relief by hastily constructed dikes or ditches to direct the torrent from ourselves upon others.

"Let this truth be fully understood, that taxes, like running water, will not stay where you put it. Experience has shown the futility of this method of relief, and common sense teaches us that the only effective way of cutting tax bills is by cutting municipal expenditures.

"A large majority of the people recognize this fact in an abstract sort of way, but while the payment of his portion of the tax burden is an intensely personal matter to the average taxpayer, the governmental expenditures made for him are avidly sought and accepted as a gracious gift from some mythical Santa Claus."

Food vs. Drink

Our per capita consumption of wheat and corn is decreasing steadily while our use of coffee, sugar and milk shows a constant growth.—Collier's Weekly.

RAIS... E... GR...

William Green, p... American Federation of L... in a statement made public recently, declared that 50 cents added to the weekly wages of every wage-earner in the country would do more to start us toward prosperity than wage cuts or price cuts.

At the same time he assailed what he termed "the hypocrisy of wage cutters," by saying that before the recent steel reduction h was argued that they were necessary in order to encourage buying of steel products. After the wage reductions were announced, Mr. Green said, it was discovered that reduced wages had no relation to reduced prices for the commodities which the iron and steel workers make.

"Of course," he said, "the real reason for the wage cut was to transfer the money in wages saved to the stockholders in dividends. But telling the truth before the cut would have brought too much public opposition. Therefore the wage cutters camouflaged their real objective with their psychological dope about the wage reduction being reflected in reduced prices for steel products."

Additional Taxpayers News

Uncle Sam, Biggest Competitor of Private Business

A conference of business, labor and agriculture was held at Chicago August 25, 1931, and the temporary organization was made permanent, and incorporated under the name, "Federation of American Business," a militant body with definite purposes in mind: To get the government out of private business and return government to its original ideas and principles. This means the repeal of present destructive laws, abolition of bureaus and commissions, reduction of government employees—one family of every twelve is now on the government payroll—and the lowering of taxes, which have been mounting to dizzy heights.

Such is the proclamation of the federation. However, this militant group might do well to take a page out of the history of the Waukegan Taxpayers Association, which, under the leadership of a golden rule enthusiast, Harry Stripe, has done away with a municipal commission, put back a representative form of aldermanic government that in turn, under Democratic Mayor Peter W. Peterson, and ten Republican alderman, has reduced the municipal payroll consistently and persistently but also provided superior public service with a much less group of payrollers. Waukegan proves what can be done by organized taxpayers under fearless, fair leadership of small taxpayers who cannot be bought off by persons who would profit from the public crib.

The Lake County Taxpayers News will tell more of the federation's purposes and plans, because they largely match into what the militant taxpayers locally have been putting into practice for some time in Lake county, which has revolted from political payrollers of the mercenary types.

Penalizing Taxpayers; Judgment Asked Oct. 12

Another penalty of 1 per cent is just added to delinquent taxes. Judgment will be asked October 12, and a sale, October 26. Nothing other than death appears to be an out for delinquent taxpayers that are so numerous this year.

DO POLITICIANS SEEK STATE CONTROL OF MUNICIPAL EXPENSE?

The state politicians are credited with a scheme to pass legislation so that local affairs may be administered by state officials who would relieve local people of drawing checks on their own taxes.

Many of us have heard of states' rights in regard to the national government, but whoever seriously listened to control of local affairs by state politicians?

Lake county is enjoying state control over a busted bank.

Lake county has observed the administration of the state's funds of the gas and road tax types.

Once bit, twice shy, is the verdict of Lake county on the latest dream of state politicians who would form a political trust to spend more of the tax money.

UP IT GOES!

"In sixteen years your taxes have increased 325 per cent. Every worker now gives one day's work in six for taxes."

"Government now costs us $13,000,000,000 a year. That exceeds the value of all crops. All money in circulation would not pay a year's cost."

"Growing tax burden results from government in business. Five hundred thousand payrollers run the bureaus, boards and commissions."—From Bulletin Federation of American Business.

Board Reviews Tax Valuations

The board of review shortly will tackle the job of reviewing Waukegan township tax valuations, including those of the Johns-Manville and the Public Service company, both of which got a substantial increase in tax valuations from Assessor Russ Alford, a former vice-president of the Waukegan Taxpayers Association, which is a militant, highly organized group of home owners and business and professional men whose motto is, "United we stand, divided we fall."

The board is working in Highland Park and other Deerfield points at present where about ninety pieces have been inspected.

NOBODY WANTS HIGLEY KEYS

Due to the persistent, insistent activity of the organized militant taxpayers in Waukegan, the Higleys have been tendered the keys to the former city hall of commission fame.

Nobody wants the keys.

It is understood that, according to the trial judge, the Higleys put on a $79,000 accommodation mortgage, prior to deeding to the city, of some $20,000 taken from the water funds. Apparently, the holder of the $79,000 mortgage notes is out of luck, at least for some time, unless somebody will acknowledge that they own the property.

The court has said that the public could not buy it subject to a mortgage and apparently the taxpayers are no longer interested in the deal other than to force back into the treasury the $20,000 taken from the water fund.

There is considerable newspaper talk that there will be an appeal to the supreme court, but not by the Mayor Peterson administration, which went into power on a platform against the Higley deal.

The injunction is against the city of Waukegan and certain officials in their official capacity and not as individuals, and consequently it is yet to be learnod by the militant taxpayers how the discarded officials can get the matter before another court.

Many take it that the agitation about fourther controversy is of the scissors variety and that nobody of any consequence is wasting serious thought on a subject which the voters indirectly passed upon when they cast out of office and power the commission form of government and all that went with it.

REDUCTION ORDERED IN GAS RATES HERE

The militant taxpayers in Lake county for some time have been objecting to $1.35 rate along with excessive prices for 7-cent carfare, 9-cent electric current and 25 cents per month increases per ton in fuel.

The politicians along the North Shore have been in many huddles on the gas rates, but so far the consumer continues to pay the high freight for cooking and heating gas.

A ray of sunshine may be in the dark domestic sky.

The Illinois commerce commission has ordered the Public Service Company of Northwestern Illinois to reduce its rate.

INCREASE SEEN FOR TUITION PUPILS

Tuition pupils are to cost $125,000, causing a non-high school levy of 50 cents for each $100 valuation.

The last levy was 26 cents.

Last year there were 581 such pupils and this year, 629, which apparently means that each pupil costs about $200 per year, a price that is not far from a college tuition.

The kids can no longer use the old methods of transportation to school. They must be hauled in public autos.

At any hour of the day or night we can connect your telephone with almost any other telephone in the world. The cost is always moderate.

And farther, too. For when Tom's Dad telephoned him after the game, he could almost hear the cheers of the spectators as his son gave him an excited eye-witness' account of the game. Football wasn't all they talked about . . . health, studies and, of course, finances!

It's a good habit for families to "keep in touch" with young folks away at school. Take a few minutes each week to telephone that boy or girl. You'll be interested in everything they do and a short conversation every week will encourage and cheer them between vacations.

Wouldn't You Like to Know Some New Appetite Tempters?

How to prepare vegetables in appetizing dishes is a problem which confronts the modern homemaker during the fall months when she must use her ingenuity to tempt her family's lagging appetites. Perhaps some of the following suggestions will be helpful.

Raw carrots when ground and combined with lemon gelatin and crushed pineapple make a delicious salad suitable for dessert. To a pint of lemon gelatin add a cup of ground carrots and a cup of crushed pineapple. Raw pineapple contains an enzyme which keeps the gelatin from getting stiff, and it is always best to bring the pineapple to a boil before adding it to the gelatin to make sure that the salad will get firm.

Onions are inexpensive and very valuable as a food. Some noon try stuffed ones. Boil some large onions 10 minutes, take out the hearts, chopping them and adding ground ham. Stuff the onions with this, sprinkle buttered crumbs over the top and put in oven to bake slowly. It is best to put a little water in the baking dish to keep the onions from becoming too brown on the bottom.

Although homemakers know that vegetables are essential foods because of the valuable minerals and vitamins they contain, it is sometimes hard to get the family to eat enough of them, when one does not like carrots and another will not eat spinach.

For just such a family was the following spinach recipe concocted, which, if served piping hot, is delicious. Heat the canned spinach, then make a stiff white sauce of four tablespoons of flour and a cup of milk. Season well with salt and pepper and add grated cheese, allowing it to melt in the white sauce. At the last minute before the meal is to be served drain the spinach and fold it gently into the sauce, so that it will not color the mixture green. Pour into a dish and sprinkle the top freely with hot buttered crumbs. Spinach au gratin, it is called.

New ways to fix potatoes are always in demand, and here is an entirely new dish. Bake the potatoes, then remove the centers and mash. To this add seasoning of salt, pepper, and butter, and then ground ham and green peppers. Use this for stuffing the half skins and brown in a hot oven. They are delicious and a welcome change.

Did You Know That There Is Romance in Plain Cookery?

"A book of verse beneath the bough,
A jug of wine, a loaf of bread, and Thou—"

These words of Omar Khayyam, the Persian poet and philosopher, hint of romance, the romance of life and love, if not of cookery; but as life and love are so closely allied to cookery, cookery itself becomes romance, for have we not always heard that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, and havn't most of us proved this through either our own or our mother's cooking? Do you remember the box socials, "way back when," and the way the men of your choice bid higher and higher to get your boxes, not at all because of the beauty of the box, but because of what it held and who had prepared it? Certainly there is romance in cookery.

There is also a romance connected with most of the foods that we prepare, were we to study it out. A pantry shelf, holding its neat rows of canned and packed foodstuffs, may seem the last place in the world to look for romance. Yet, if you but stop to think about it, adventure flourishes there. The sugar, spices, and beverages, for instance, would have many interesting tales to tell about their trip here from far-away lands, could they only talk. And so it is with many other things that may be found on your pantry shelves.

Antioch Women Are Like All Others--- Addicts of Fashion

Cleopatra and the Eskimos are the only sane people in history. The Eskimos wear furs because they are the "frozen people of God" and would die of chilbains if they didn't; and Cleopatra adorned herself merely as a tribute to Ye Goddess of Beauty not because of preverse climatic conditions.

But when fall arrived in Antioch, what did local women do? Well, figuratively speaking, they steamed down the street those hot, sultry mornings, garbed in what? Furs, that burn like a noose around the neck of a hanging man. Their color, by the way, was their only redeeming feature. And in the afternoon these same wilted women came out of their respective homes to play with the heat like St. George with his famous dragon.

And when the warm evenings rolled 'round and strains of sweet, syncopating harmonies proclaimed to the world and to Antioch and vicinity in particular, that a dance was in swing, what did our transplanted Eskimos do? No less than climb into that velvet wrap and those unbearably hot gloves.

Women who are historically brave are cowards when it comes to matters of comfort.

"Vanity, thy name is man!" Women are eternally upbraided for their whimsical fashion fancies, but after all, we are honest in admitting our desire for edification, aren't we?

Speed of Falling Bodies

Experiments have proved that the rate per second at which bodies acquire velocity in falling through the air is thirty-two feet. If a ball be allowed to fall from a tower, it is moving at the rate of thirty-two feet per second at the end of the first second after it has dropped from the hand; at the end of the next second with a velocity of sixty-four feet, and at the end of the third second at the rate of ninety-six feet per second.

Fashion Salons for Tots

Children's fashion salons are to be features of leading London stores. One place has just installed a merry-go-round in the center, and the lights are in the form of observation balloons complete with baskets and ropes

TOPPY'S TRAVELS

After Toppy stopped rolling, he stood up on the bank of a stream, knowing that he was somewhere near home at last. Looking around, he beheld a tiny dewdrop crouching in a shady nook.

"Don't hurt me," the dewdrop implored.

"Who are you?" Toppy asked.

"I am Toyette," the dewdrop answered. "Have you seen my father?"

"Who is your father?"

"His name is Toy, and I haven't seen him for such a long time that I am afraid something has happened to him."

Now Toppy understood. This was the baby Toy had adopted when the Snowball became so happy that he smiled and melted baby dewdrops; because Toppy learned so quickly when he first entered Cloud-land.

"Don't worry," he advised the little one. "I am sure Toy will be here soon. Look! Here he comes, now!" and the little Toy came hustling up, all out of breath, and nearly exhausted from worry.

"I thought I never would find you, Toppy!" he exclaimed, "It took so long to travel in the shade beneath the leaves and bushes. Let me go with you, Toppy."

"I am afraid you wouldn't like my country, Toy," Toppy said kindly. "Besides, your baby probably would die."

"Is my baby still alive?" exclaimed Toy, hope spreading across his face.

"Here he is," Toppy laughed, pointing at the trembling dewdrop.

Toy ran to the tiny baby. "At last I've come back, Toyette. I never would have found you if it hadn't been for Toppy. Now I can bear the thought of his going away. Good-bye, Toppy, good-bye."

The little boy felt very forlorn after he had left his loyal little friend. He wondered if he would ever see him again.

He crossed the stream, and climbed onto a mossy bank which seemed, somehow, very familiar. Walking on into a big woods, he was surprised to hear a bird singing above his head. He looked up, and there was his lost canary, Linny, who had flown away so long ago.

"Linny, Linny!" Toppy cried. "Come here!"

He stretched out his hand and the bird hopped down to him, fluttering his wings, before he nestled contentedly in Toppy's hand.

Toppy began to hurry, faster and faster, until he came to the edge of the wood. There, now he could see the big trees that grew around his house. He ran to the garden gate, and opened it.

To his surprise, there was Mr. Frog, sunning himself on the stones.

"Why, Mr. Frog," he exclaimed. "How did you get here?"

The old frog blinked sleepily, but gave no answer.

"You are not Mr. Frog," Toppy said. "You are only Goggles, our old frog!"

If the frog winked, Toppy did not see him, for he was running on into the house to find his mother, Nancy and Brother Jackie, to tell them about his wondrous adventures on his travels.

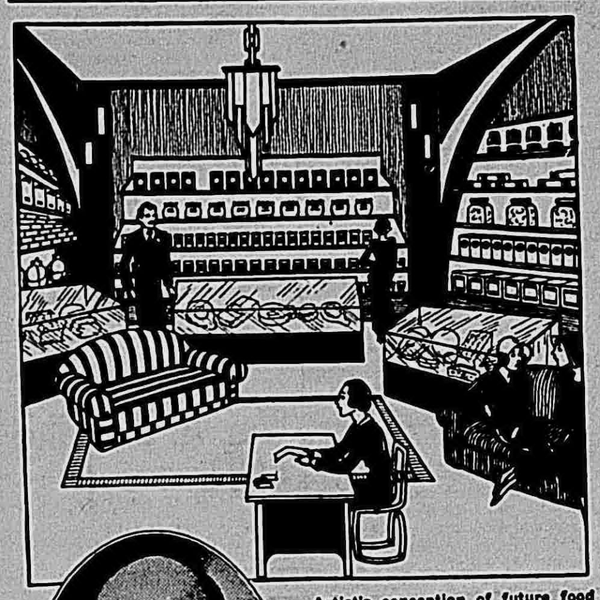

But his mother found him first. She found him lying on the floor, among pillows and cushions which he had kicked about, surrounded by his toy soldiers.

"Did you have a nice sleep, Toppy boy?" she asked, as she wiped the beads of perspiration from his hot face. "Linny was singing so loudly I was afraid he would wake you."

Toppy looked at Linny, singing in his cage. Mr. Frog, Toy, and the Cloud-Queen were all gone. Even the Pillows and Cushions had changed. Only Linny remained to share the knowledge of the secret adventures of Toppy's Travels.

The End.

The Food Store of the Future

Artist's conception of future food store, rivaling the smart Fifth Avenue shop in appointments and neatness. It will dispense perishable foods in cartons, quick-frozen by a new process. Inset: Clarence Birdseye, inventor of process.

THE open bins, boxes, barrels, bags and other bulk containers of the old-fashioned grocery store have virtually disappeared, and in their places today we find orderly displays of food products in boxes, packages, bottles, cans and other family-size containers on the dealers' shelves.

The public is getting higher quality foods in much greater variety than ever before, but thus far most of the improvements have been made in the status of non-perishable and semi-perishable items.

Recent discoveries in using 50-below-zero cold for quick-freezing perishable foods will soon make it possible for the public to buy meats, vegetables, fruits and other perishables in cartons and packages, hard-frozen by a new process.

With the development of this quick-freezing process, which keeps perishable foods fresh flavored and fresh textured for months in a frozen state, even porterhouse steaks and strawberries will come in packages and will be dispensed as simply as salt and breakfast foods and tea are now sold.

By putting meats and vegetables and other perishable foods into convenient and sanitary packages, the Birdseye quick-freezing method will make possible spick and span stores such as is shown in the artist's conception of the food store of the future.

Women's Prohibition Reform Organization Holds Mass Meeting

In an effort to bring about a repeal of the eighteenth amendment as a first step toward temperance, the women's organization for national prohibition reform and The Crusaders will hold a public mass meeting Friday evening, October 16, at 8 o'clock, at the Waukegan high school gymnasium, Washington and Jackson streets, Waukegan.

Speakers Well Known.

The speakers of the evening will be Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, New York, founder and national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which is working for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and advocates the abandonment of national prohibition as a necessary economic measure as well as an imperative civic and social reform, predicts that by the end of the year the membership of her organization, which is less than three years old, will exceed that of the W. C. T. U., which has been in existence over fifty years. Mrs. Sabin's topic will be, "One Way to Help Restore Prosperity."

The other speaker is Judge James Jerome Trainor, prominent Chicago lawyer and veteran of the World war, who is a member of the executive committee of the Crusaders of their divisional political activities committee.

"Repeal, Control, Educate."

The women's organization believes that after repeal, control and education are essential. Control of the liquor traffic by state legislation, protection of each state in its system of liquor control by federal regulation, control of crime by removing the profit, and control of drinking by temperance education through public health and welfare agencies and public schools.

In order to insure an orderly shift from national prohibition to state control, it is essential that the bill for repeal of the eighteenth amendment should include a section providing that repeal shall not become effective until each state shall have had sufficient time to establish its own liquor control system.

The liquor traffic can be brought under control by permitting the people to decide what form of control and regulation they desire. Since conditions in Maine are different from those in California and the situation which prevails in New York is totally different from those in Kansas, it becomes evident that only by returning to each state the right to control the liquor traffic within its own borders can laws be framed which will meet the wishes of the people. Each state can be fully protected against the invasion of the liquor traffic from other states by federal regulation such as that provided in the Webb-Kenyon act which was passed prior to the enactment of the eighteenth amendment but which did not have an opportunity to function.

Claims Nation-Wide Extent.

This organization is enrolling women throughout the country to work for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as the first step toward temperance. The national body is composed of state divisions, many of which are already engaged in working out systems of liquor control suitable to their respective states. While there will undoubtedly be dissimilarity in their plans, there is a uniformity in their objectives which precludes the return of the saloon and other abuses. These objectives are: First, an intelligent system of liquor control responsive to the wishes of the people, which will leave no room for graft or corruption and which will lend itself to the promotion of real temperance; second, a comprehensive, scientific and effective system of temprance education under the supervision of public health and public education agencies.

This is the constructive program which the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform has adopted as a means of solving the liquor problem in this country—repeal, control, and educate.

Foreign War Vets May Organize Post

Seeking to interest local service men in the formation of a post of Veterans of Foreign Wars for Antioch and vicinity, Quartermaster John Dejong, of the Matt L. H. Smith Post, 1293, Waukegan, was here Tuesday enlisting the aid of men who have seen service in foreign lands.

Membership is limited to those who have borne arms for Uncle Sam in foreign lands, according to Mr. Dejong, who is gathering data regarding the number of those in this community eligible to become members. Thus those who served in the Mexican punitive expedition in 1914, the Boxer rebellion in China, the Spanish-American war, and those who served overseas in the World war may become members. Civil war veterans may become honorary members.

John N. Pacini is Antioch's only Spanish-American veteran, and Addison J. Felter is Antioch township's sole survivo rof those who wore the blue.

Mrs. G. E. Phillips Organizes Scouts

widened and a sense of responsibility is developed. The object of the Girl Scout organization, then, is to give girls, through natural wholesome pleasures, those habits of mind and body which will make them responsible, useful women, or, as Mrs. Phillips chose to say it in an interview this morning, "It does everything to make a girl a better woman."

According to the laws specified by the national headquarters, a Girl Scout's honor is to be trusted, she must be loyal, helpful to others, a friend to all, a sister to every other Girl Scout, courteous, a friend to animals, cheerful, thrifty, obedient, and last, but not least, clean in thought, word, and deed.

Structure Complicated.

Now for the physical structure of the group. A troop of Girl Scouts consists of at least eight girls, preferably twelve, between the ages of 10 and 18, who are willing to subscribe to the Scout promise and laws. The leader of the troop or captain must be 21 years of age or over, her assistant or lieutenant, 18 or over. Lieutenants secure their commissions in the same way as the captain. The captain also has the aid of the patrol leaders, who are in charge of patrols, consisting of from six to eight girls. The troop is made up of two or more patrols, four being as many as a troop should have. The patrol leader chooses a girl, who is called a second, to assist her. The patrol is the small unit led by its own leader. Each girl considers the honor of her unit to be always at stake, and that it is up to her and the other members to uphold its reputation. This brings the development of self-discipline, sense of duty, and selflessness down to the individual. There is also the patrol leader. She is responsible for keeping her patrol up to the mark so that the patrol as a whole does not fall behind any other. To do this effectively she soon discovers that she has to be a leader not only in name but in fact and in act.

The Court of Honor, the governing board or executive committee of the troop, is composed of the patrol leaders, the captain, and the lieutenant. As chairman, the captain has no vote: her participation is indirect The patrol leaders, usually elected by the patrol members, represent their patrols at the Court of Honor. They discuss with them whatever they wish brought up at the Court of Honor and report to them afterwards what has taken place. The Court of Honor meets immediately after the troop meeting in order that the patrol leaders may bring suggestions from the patrol meetings to the Court of Honor. When the patrol system is not properly understood and the Court of Honor meets before the troop meetings, the captain is there to make announcements, but the girls have often forgotten the discussions which took place the week before, and, in any case, even if they remember them, it is too late to plan the coming meeting accordingly. Thus the value of the patrol system is destroyed, as the captain depends on the patrol leaders to keep her informed of the wishes of the troop and so insure that the troop is run to please the girls.

Living the rough-and-tumble life that they do, Girl Scouts must of course have uniforms. They consist of a 1-piece dress of official grey-green material with a belt of the dress material provided with the uniform. Girl Scout green hat and neckerchief, and Girl Scout pin.

Must Pass Test.

Even though a good time is not considered a by-product of Girl Scout living, girls cannot become registered members of the organization without having passed the so-called tenderfoot test, which involves a knowledge of the rules, the use of the flag, woodcraft signs, animal stories, and knot tying.

Meets with Co-Operative Spirit.

Thus far in her organization work, Mrs. Phillips has met with nothing but the most vigorous and agreeable co-operation. This support, in addition to her own enthusiasm and capacity for grilling hard work, makes prospects for the success of the movement look bright. The Antioch Woman's Club and the Parent-Teacher association have already pledged $5 a year, and other local groups are considering the matter of giving the organization financial support.

Those who have been named members of the executive committee are the Misses Idabelle Harwood and Mildred Byrnes and Mesdames H. H. Reickers, George Garland, and E. J. Lutterman.

With a large number of enthusiastic girls in attendance, the initial meeting was held at the grade school Monday afternoon. Through the efforts of the committee in charge, several Libertyville Scouts, dressed in their official uniforms, came over for the occasion. Another meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon, at which time it was decided that a regular meeting would be held every Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the grade school, the headquarters of the organization.

Home Talent Play To Be Given Here

"The College Girl" is the name of the home talent musical comedy which will be presented by the members of the Antioch Community Chest organization at the high school auditorium, October 19 and 20.

The production will be presented by a cast of many local celebrities before a background of pretty girls, appearing in the most gorgeous costume array ever attempted locally.

As a special added attraction 100 local kiddies will take part in a miniature wedding preceding the performance which will be called "The Wedding of the Little Doll."

Don't forget card party at St. Peter's church hall, Thursday night, October 15. Bridge, 500, and bunco will be played. Come and join the crowd.
